

If you have dreamt of a book that may lift the reading experience to an unprecedented height and open up windows of knowledge about philosophies, mythologies, cosmos and our relation to the "Cosmic Being" it will be difficult to find any other book written in recent time which would be more appropriate than this epic journey of the universal man written for the readers of the 21st century. If you like to reflect about the meaning of life and seek ways to realize the life which may fulfill this meaning, the book seeks to guide you to understand the nature of a multi-dimensional reality through which all human beings are destined to wander life after life. Why as a part of the Universal Man are we all wandering life after life? Are we parts of a greater existence, which is taking shape through us and evolving in the cosmos? Is there any direction towards which our existence is meant to evolve? Is there any God? Does there exist anything beyond the matter-bound existence, which the religious people and mystics have talked about? How one may connect to that spiritual world? The book written mostly in verse will take you in a journey that will throw lights on these important questions addressed by mankind through ages.

Tathagata is not any man from any particular culture, time and place. He embodies the universal urges of humanity. As an embodiment of the will of man from all cultures, and places, he is the journeyman who appears as the universal protagonist of all times. The story of the journey of Tathagata will provide knowledge and perspectives that may help the readers, belonging to different cultures in the contemporary world, to find direction in life that may bring a sense of meaning and fulfillment of living. The epic journey, which is framed in a cosmic and mythical perspective, may remind the readers about Dante's "Divine Comedy", where Tathagata is the counterpart of Dante's pilgrim, who makes a journey through different realms of the mind with his Guide.

It relates a journey of the universal Cosmic Man, who wanders through a multidimensional reality which manifests through different levels of consciousness, which empower imagination and creativity and provide possibilities of evolution of man to a higher stage. The reality takes its shape according to the nature of consciousness in which the mind perches on the world to gaze at it. The way one chooses decides the reality of life which one may experience as an instinct-bound individual, or a creative artistic person, or a rational and scientific man, or a mystic for example.

Tathagata comes and goes life after life following the wheel of birth, death and rebirth. He searches beauty, love and meaning of life in every realm he enters. The journey in each realm ends up as an experience of suffering which results from the aspiration of man to attain a higher path of realization and a greater understanding of the meaning of life. By carrying urges and desires that cause conflicts he wanders from realms to realms in search of an enlightened way. By traveling through interpenetrating multiple spheres of the reality, where one realm contradicts the other, man hankers after meaning, love and beauty that may bring end to the suffering to life.

DESCRIPTION

A Divine Comedy for our time will take the readers through the realms of poetry, philosophy, mythology, spirituality, religion, and cosmos. Some may call it an epic journey of mankind; some may find an inspiration to philosophical search for meaning of life; some may experience it as a journey of the soul through spiritual realms in the company of a spiritual Guide similar to Dante's Divine Comedy. If one wishes to read a book, which may lift the reading experience to an unprecedented height and open up windows of knowledge about philosophies, mythologies, cosmos and our relation to the "Cosmic Being" it will be difficult to find any other book written in recent time which would be more enticing. It will inspire readers to reflect about the meaning of life and seek ways to realize life which may fulfill a greater aspiration. Why as a part of the Universal Man are we all wandering life after life? Are we parts of a greater existence, which is taking shape through us and evolving in the cosmos? Is there any direction towards which our existence is meant to evolve? Is there any God? Does there exist anything beyond the matter-bound existence, which the religious people and mystics have talked about? How one may connect to the spiritual realm? The book will throw lights on many of these important questions of existence.
